

ARTICLE 1-8
OFFICE 1-8

WASHINGTON TIMES
5 July 1985

DIANA HEARS

STAT

Q: Speaking of the Dear Departed: Whatever happened to David Aaron, Jimmy Carter's National Security aide? Last I heard, he was in hot water — accused of blowing the whistle on a Soviet official who was really a US spy.

A: The Senate cleared him of that charge. He's now a happy investment banker in the Big Apple. And he's written two books — one about business and politics, and the other, a thriller about a stolen nuclear bomb, and how the White House and National Security Council cope with the crisis. Both are making the rounds of publishers right now.